

FAMILY MENTAL HEALTH

THROUGH THE LENS OF NONVIOLENCE

SIX CONTINUING EDUCATION CREDITS

Understanding the myriad challenges that families are facing helps professionals provide effective and meaningful support. Based on the research about attachment theory, interpersonal neurobiology, trauma informed care and social and emotional intelligence, this workshop lead by Ruth Beaglehole, M.A. and Stephanie Blank, L.C.S.W. will introduce mental health professionals to a new paradigm for assessment, diagnosis and treatment of children and families.

Wednesday, February 27, 2013
9am to 4pm (registration at 8:30)

PROGRAM INFORMATION

Location:

Altadena Community Service Center
730 E. Altadena Drive, Altadena, CA 91001

Who should attend:

All mental health professionals are welcome. Echo Parenting & Education is approved by the California Board of Behavioral Sciences to provide continuing education credits for LCSW's and or MFT's. Provider # PCE 4426.

Course Fee:

$75 for early registration (ends January 31st). $85 for standard registration. Professional continuing education credits (six CEU's) are available for an additional $40 fee.

Refund Policy/Additional Information:

Cancellations must be made 3 days prior to the workshop. A $25 fee will apply. Substitutions are allowed. For other questions, please contact Glenda at glinares@echoparenting.org or (213) 484-6676 ext 310.

Registration:

Online at echoparenting.org or by phone: (213) 484-6676

RUTH BEAGLEHOLE, M.A.

Ruth Beaglehole is the founder and Executive Director of Echo Parenting & Education. Her close observation of children began with her study at Wellington Kindergarten Training College, and in 1967, she received her B.A. in Education from Victoria University, New Zealand. Her Master's degree in Marriage, Family and Child Therapy is from Phillips Institute. Ruth founded both the Echo Park / Silver Lake People's Child Care Center and the Teen Parenting and Child Care program at the L.A. Technology Center for the Los Angeles Unified School District.

STEPHANIE BLANK, L.C.S.W.

Stephanie Blank has provided therapy to adults, children, and families for over 10 years. She sees clients in her private practice in South Pasadena and Los Angeles. She is the Former Program Director of PROTOTYPES I-CAN Outpatient Mental Health Clinic where she facilitated supervision of clinicians who provide psychotherapy and assessment to families through the lens of nonviolence. Stephanie received her MSW from Boston University, and she is a certified parent educator for Echo Parenting & Education, bringing the philosophy of nonviolence in parenting to the clinical setting.