What teachers will get from this workshop:

- Empathy, understanding, & support FOR YOU.
- Communication and conflict resolution support, including critical tools to support children and youth's social and emotional development.
- Ways to help children and teens navigate anger, including new research on trauma and brain development.
- Alternatives to the myriad of classroom management systems based on control, punishment, and rewards that don't address the underlying root causes of behavior or create the quality of connection you want with your students.

Documentation of PD hours available and/or two salary points for LAUSD teachers.

Two days of practical and empathic support to K-12 teachers. We'll be sharing information about social and emotional development, and about the brain and nervous system, including how many classroom management challenges have much more to do with the nervous system than with good or bad behavior. You'll get to understand what's happening for them (and us), and get tools to help stabilize all those nervous systems, figure out conflicts, and keep your own cool too.

About the Echo Parenting & Education

At Echo Parenting & Education, we're dedicated to reimagining the adult/child dynamic. We offer program participants a whole new way of looking at raising children.

We help people in families, schools, and all types of agencies that serve children and families to move away from fear-based judging toward empathetic connection and fostering healthy development. And we're all about raising children with care and building loving, respectful families and communities.

Since 2000, The Echo Parenting & Education has been helping families and organizations in Los Angeles and around the world. Please visit echoparenting.org to learn more, and join the global movement of parents and professionals who dare to imagine a world in which all children are raised with empathy and compassion, free from physical and emotional harm.

About Nonviolence

The term "nonviolence" describes a commitment to treat oneself and others with deep respect. It is a belief in the basic goodness of all living things. Nonviolence is an all encompassing perspective. It includes our thoughts, feelings, words, and actions. What we think and say matters.

The philosophy and practice of nonviolence in working with children and youth applies the ideas of nonviolence to the relationship between adults and children.

Their connection allows the child to learn to be a caring and empathetic human being, fulfilling his or her own dreams and wishes and at the same time supporting the dreams and wishes of others. Violence begets violence, while nonviolence begets nonviolence.
